HolidayCity.com launches online chat for travellers

Tuesday, 11 April 2006

The team at HolidayCity.com have recently launched an online chat facility for travellers who want to receive up to date and current hotel and booking information about the hotel they are planning to stay at.

This innovative idea has been in its testing phase since November 2005 and due to successful feedback was officially launched in April. The HolidayCity.com website has a link where customer service representatives are able to answer questions regarding rates, hotel information and other queries in real time.

HolidayCity is an internet based hotel reservation service that is available to customers worldwide. Offering more than 7000 hotels in 400 destinations, the launching of the online chat will sure benefit customers who are increasingly making reservations online.
